

INTRO TO PERMACULTURE

Empower Yourself to Create a Sustainable Future

Do you want to live a deeper shade of green but don't know where to start?

Permaculture enables individuals to skillfully transform their lives through the thoughtful design and creation of resilient, agriculturally productive landscapes. Whether you are an urban dweller interested in growing food or a rural dude seeking greater self-sufficiency, permaculture will enable you to realize just that. Join teachers Jillian Hovey & Justin Tilson for a long weekend of learning, hands-on training, camping and nourishing, local food on beautiful Manitoulin Island.

Jillian Hovey is a seasoned international permaculture teacher who is dedicated to inspiration and education about healthy and sustainable living. Her professional skills are focused on the teaching, design, and facilitation of eco development projects ranging from designs of urban lots to whole ecovillage communities.

Justin Tilson spent years building urban food gardens in Vancouver before diving into a permaculture. Following a design course at OUR Ecovillage, he completed the Bullocks' Teacher Training Program on Orcas Island, WA. Justin is committed to empowering others through permaculture to create a global, sustainable culture. He has an MBA in Sustainable Development from bgi.edu.
